Death - KS3 ...

The outbreak of the Black Death in the Prussian town of Elbing (today the Polish town of Elblag) on August 24th, 1349, was a new milestone in the history of the Black Death. A ship that left Oslo at the beginning of June would probably sail through the Sound around June 20th and reach Elbing in the second half of July, in time to unleash an epidemic outbreak around August 24th.

Black Death The Black Death was one of the most feared diseases in the 14th century. It was a type of plague, that was spread via the bite of infected rat fleas. The name Black Death came from the swollen buboes (glands) in the victim's neck, armpits and inner thigh, that turned black as they filled with blood.

How the Black Death Spread Along the Silk Road - HISTORY

Many people believed the Black Death to be a punishment from God for the sins of the people. Others suggested that the positioning of the planets caused the plague (a treatise published in 1348 noted that the planets Mars, Jupiter and Saturn had passed close to each other in 1345). Poisonous air was another cause widely circulated.

The Black Death is, in fact, not one but two related diseases. The most common form is bubonic plague. This disease is spread when infected fleas that normally live on black rats land on people and bite them. A person suffering from bubonic plague in the Middle Ages had a 60% chance of dying within two to five days of being infected.
