A musical genre is "a set of musical events (real or possible) whose course is governed by a definite set of socially accepted rules". The notion of set, both for a genre and for its defining apparatus, means that we can speak of sub-sets like "sub-genres", and of all the operations foreseen by the theory of sets: in

A Theory of Musical Genres: Two Applications

Musical genre is a form of categorization that groups musical entities, such as musical works, which share affinity criteria.

However, the way we use the category and theorize about it depends on how we define the concept of musical genre. Current musicological theories propose genres to be sets, with properties defining their boundaries; or
