In short, fewer customers visit physical bank locations, and banks have been slow to make up for lost branch sales by implementing a comprehensive digital model for bancassurance. The lack of such a model becomes even more relevant when considering many banks' renewed focus on lending products sales.

EUROPE LEADS THE WAY: The Big Banc first exploded in Europe, and it seems self-sustaining. "Despite the onslaught of financial regulation that European banks have endured since the financial crisis, the region still leads the way for bancassurance in terms of global market share. Life insurance and long-term saving products have historically dominated European bancassurance, although non-life insurance products have gained ground in recent years."

Bancassurance, the provision of policies by banks or lending institutions, represents one of the most significant changes to have occurred in the insurance industry over recent years. This practice originated in France in the mid-1980s, and spread rapidly, particularly in Europe, Australia, and emerging markets; however, it is applied heterogeneously around the world.
