Based on the traditional In Paradisum text, this simple and gentle piece may be used during the funeral liturgy, or it may be used at the graveside to allow people time to bid farewell to their loved one. Song of Farewell can be sung with or without accompaniment, and is structured around a continuing ostinato refrain, which can be increasingly embellished to build the song ' s intensity by adding verses, harmonies, descants, solo instruments, and a fuller keyboard accompaniment.

The Song of Commendation (aka the song of farewell) is only sung during the funeral mass if the Prayers of Commendation (the Rite of Commendation and Farewell) are said during the mass. If those prayers are omitted for some reason, such as if the Rite of Committal at a Crematorium with Final Commendation is to be said elsewhere, than the song is omitted from the funeral mass.

Why is the Song of Farewell / Final Commendation at the end of the funeral Mass? Must it be in this spot in the Liturgy? I understand that logically the final send-off should occur at the end. But what if it was theologically more powerful at a different place in the Mass? Like, right between the Liturgy of the Word and the Liturgy of the Eucharist at the presentation of the gifts.
