As your gut instinct is the most ancient and primal "sixth sense" you have, it is the one you can rely upon the most. One example of your gut instinct in action would be deciding to spontaneously avoid walking down a road at night because something "feels off." That feeling is your gut instinct warning you that danger is afoot.

In a literal sense, gut feeling is an instinctive feeling rather than intuition. Instinctive feelings are felt in the gut because our brain signals chemical releases that work to slow or stop our digestion when we feel threatened by harm, attack or some other perceived danger. This is an ancestral response. It aims to prepare humans for action.
