Dropshipping is a method of retail fulfillment where stores do not actually stock their products. When someone buys a product, the store buys it from another party and then ships it to the customer directly. The merchant neither handles nor sees the product. Dropshipping is different from the conventional retail model in that, in dropshipping the seller does not own an inventory. He or she purchases an order from a third party. The dropshipping model, like everything else, has drawbacks and benefits. You need less capital: this is arguably the biggest advantage. You do not need thousands of dollars to start an ecommerce store. Conventional retailers need to have a huge amount of capital to build their inventory. In dropshipping, you only purchase a product once a customer has placed an order and made the payment. An initial inventory investment is not needed. Easy to start: an ecommerce business becomes much easier to run when you do not handle physical products. You will not worry about a warehouse, packing and shipping, tracking inventory, handling returns, and much more. Low overhead: since you will not be dealing with a warehouse or purchasing inventory, expect low overhead expenses. A lot of people run a dropshipping businesses from their home office with their laptop and only use about $100 per month. The expenses may increase as your business grows but they will still be low. Flexible location: if you have an internet connection, you can manage your dropshipping business from anywhere.

Do you want to learn the principles behind dropshipping? Then keep reading... Dropshipping is an e-commerce business model that differs from the conventional way of doing e-commerce in that you do not physically handle the products you sell, nor do you stockpile the products that you offer for sale. You set up your e-commerce shop online through your own website or using platforms such as Shopify, Amazon or eBay. You offer certain products to your clients that are available from reliable wholesale suppliers and manufacturers that offer the products in your chosen niche. Once your client places the order with you, the chain reaction starts. You in turn place an order with your supplier. Your supplier charges you for the product at a previously arranged price and then ships the product directly to your client. Depending on your niche products, your suppliers can be anywhere on earth. There is no limitations of where your suppliers are located; this works for sensitive products as well as the timeframe from manufacture to delivery to client is shortened as inventory is not sitting on a shelf in the hopes of it being sold before expiry date. You are the captain of your own ship and you need to make an informed decision to start up your business.
