Andrew Root's "Faith Formation in a Secular Age". For many churches the youth ministry is a very important part of the life of the congregation. If the youth ministry is going well, the church is an attractive place to be. There is an energy, a vibrancy, a liveliness, about what's going on in that church. On the other hand, when a church's youth ministry isn't seen this way, suggestions about what the church is going to do about the "young people" are vocalised.
