In law departments, leadership has many faces: the CLO, the managing attorneys, the servicing lawyers who work each day with the clients, and law department executives should all be leaders. And, of course, while every lawyer must be a leader, each must also be a superb collaborative team member (promoting harmony within the department, and in synch with their clients, outside counsel, external vendors, and co-venturists).

Law practice management is the management of a law practice. In the United States, law firms may be composed of a single attorney, of several attorneys, or of many attorneys, plus support staff such as paralegals/legal assistants, secretaries, and other personnel. Debate over law as a profession versus a business has occurred for over a century; a number of observers believe that it is both. Law practice management is the study and practice of business administration in the legal context, includ

Law practice management - Wikipedia

Legal risk management, sometimes referred to simply as "LRM," is one of the core activities of any corporate legal department, regardless of the size of the department or the company itself. If there is just a single lawyer in the legal department, he or she must develop a basic LRM initiative that takes into account the dearth of time and other resources available.
