Neither Sun nor Death is the best introduction available to Sloterdijk's philosophical theory of globalization. It reveals a philosophe extraordinaire, encyclopedic and provocative, as much at ease with current French Theory (Gilles Deleuze, Paul Virilio, Gabriel Tarde) as with Heidegger and Indian mystic Osho Rajneesh.

In Neither Sun nor Death, Sloterdijk answers questions posed by German writer Hans-Jurgen Heinrichs, commenting on such issues as technological mutation, development media, communication technologies, and his own intellectual itinerary. Iconoclastic and provocative, alternatively sparking and bombastic, a child of '68 and a libertarian, Sloterdijk is the most exciting and controversial German philosopher to appear on the world scene since Nietzsche and Heidegger.

Neither Sun nor Death: Sloterdijk, Peter: Amazon.com.au: Books

Neither Sun Nor Death is a collection of interviews between Peter Sloterdijk and Hans-Jurgen Heinrichs. The structure of an interview happens to work incredibly well for a reader in terms of getting to the essentials of Sloterdijk's formal analysis and ways of thinking. Heinrichs provides us with the voice that questions, interprets and asks for clarification when necessary, and Sloterdijk exhibits a gracefulness that is admirable, almost otherworldly, he seems to have elevated himself to ...

With a bit of detective work I managed to work out the "chain of custody" behind the words. So "Neither fire nor wind, birth nor death can erase our good deeds" is from Buddha's Little Instruction Book. This is turn is based on "Neither fire, nor moisture, nor wind can destroy the blessing of a good deed, and blessings benefit the whole world," which is from the same author's Teachings of the Buddha (1996), or at least both of these quotes are variants of each other.
