In the world of Mark Strand's Poetry there is perpetual night. It is perpetually cold, and perpetually empty. The house is empty. The sky is empty and dark. There is absolutely nothing to be happy about. And in this world there is a man, I believe he is Mark Strand, he lives in strange dreams.

Selected Poems by Mark Strand - Goodreads

This New Selected Poems by Mark Strand arrives twenty-five years after his last Selected and explains everything. It is a most interesting introduction to a significant poet. The poems from the early books are typically dark and mysterious; they breathe a natural style as different from Lorca's manner as the New World is from the Old.

About New Selected Poems. From Sleeping with One Eye Open (1964) through the wonderful middle work that includes The Oyster (1990) and crowned by the Pulitzer Prize-winning Blizzard of One (1998) and his most recent new collection, Man and Camel (2006), this book gives us an essential selection of Mark Strand's poetry from across the entire span of his remarkable career to date.

New Selected Poems by Mark Strand: 9780375711275 ...

Strand's collection Man and Camel (2006) contains more playful, witty moments than previous books, though, as Lucas points out in his review, its "tension, between what is present and what cannot be touched, continues to be the most consistent theme in Strand's work." Selected Poems (2007) draws on Strand's work from the previous two decades and is full of "buffoons whom the poet never met." As wrote Dan Chiasson in the New Yorker, adding "they represent his ...

From 1964, Mark Strand wrote 14 books of poetry, beginning with Sleeping With One Eye Open which was published by Stony Brook Press. His early work is noted for its close association with dreams and dream-logic, while themes of disassociation of self from the world, time and also the presence of death in life, became more prevalent in his work as it developed.
