held at the Oberwolfach Mathematical Research Institute, August 9-16, 1980.

They include 33 of the 38 invited conference papers, as well as three papers subsequently submitted in writing.

Further, there is a report devoted to new and unsolved problems, based on years. Many of the papers solicited not only outline

fundamental

fields but also focus on interconnections
between the various research areas. The papers in the present volume have been

Following the rationale that corpora have an important part to play in fostering language awareness, this monograph investigates the use of spoken corpora in the teaching of German as a foreign language. Corpus-

based research has had an increasing influence on
language teaching
pedagogy, with regard to linguistic
content as well as to teaching methodology. While the majority of studies reporting on corpus-based teaching approaches refer to English, only a small number of studies have discussed such an approach for German. In this study, the exploitation of language corpora is proposed in order to arrive at authentic teaching materials which facilitate the comprehension of German modal particles, which pose numerous problems for learners of German as a foreign language. The approach is twofold: first, the frequency of those word forms

Tragen Roman
Josef Martin

Bauer
which may function
as modal particles is established.

Secondly,
concordance data of
the more frequently
occurring particles
are analysed
qualitatively.

Teaching materials
based on these analyses are developed referring

to patterns of use
which can be relayed
to language learners

in order to provide them with tools for the decoding of
particle meaning.
